About Podcast Brunch Club

LIKE BOOK CLUB, BUT FOR PODCASTS

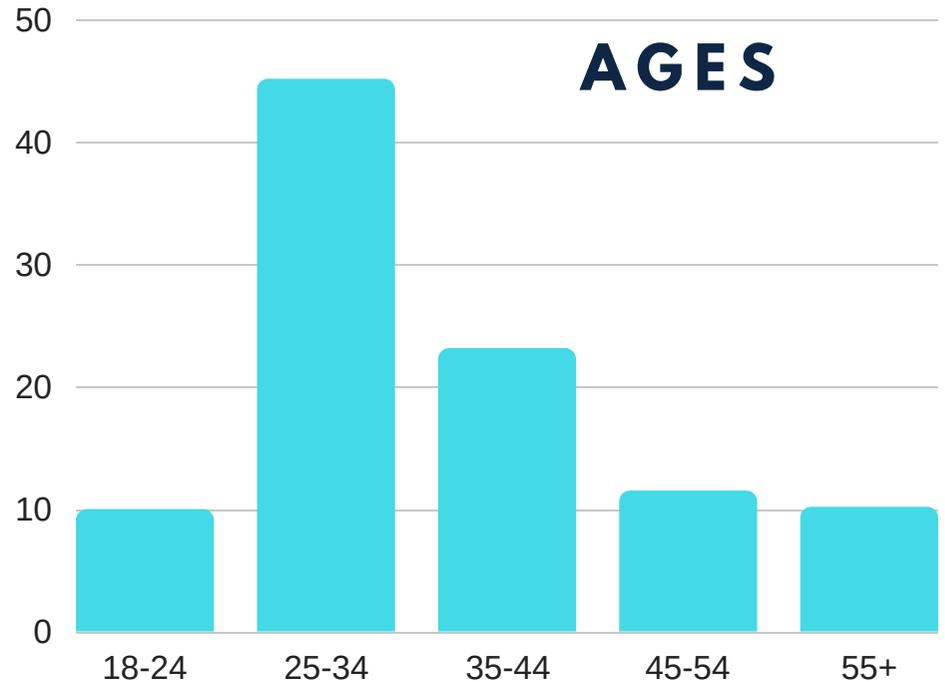

PBC is a global community of engaged podcast listeners.

Conversation and dialogue are at the heart of PBC and we bring people together in real life in over 70 cities across 6 continents for thoughtful discussion around a theme. Every month we explore a theme by way of 2-5 hours of podcast listening selections.

Members listen to the episode selections on their own time and then meet in person in local chapters around the world to discuss.

PBC Community

PBC FOUNDER: ADELA MIZRACHI

Hi. I'm Adela. I'm a curious human, always looking for new ways to explore the world. I've traveled the globe, needing new pages for my passport and living in Ethiopia for a year. My background is international education, but I now work as a communications specialist at Northwestern University.

I am a huge podcast fan, but one day while I was listening to one of my faves, it occurred to me how solitary podcast listening is. Much like reading a great book, you might find yourself laughing out loud, crying with true empathy, or stunned by people's (fill in the blank here: kindness, ingenuity, audacity, etc.). You're left looking around to share it with someone only to realize that you are listening alone. For a true podcast enthusiast, you ultimately try to weave these pieces into conversation, just for sake of trying to connect the people you care about with the audio content you care about. That is, until a friend points out that the last three sentences you said started with "that's like this one podcast I listened to..." Technology has brought some great things, but person-to-person interaction has become more difficult. I founded PBC to bring people together in an increasingly digital world.
